

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED IN FITTING MANNER

Memorial Day was well observed in Redwood City last Monday with appropriate exercises both at the Sequoia Theatre on Broadway and at the Union cemetery on the Del Norte road. The speaker of the day was John Gill, vice-president of the Sequoia Union High School, who in a short but extremely well ordered talk, called to the attention of all present the fact that the day was observed in honor of the brave men who gave their lives for the Republic, as well as the more recent wars. The opening remarks at the service were made by the Rev. E. Evans, pastor of the Sequoia Theatre, who, in a short but fitting address, called to the attention of the audience the fact that the day was observed in honor of the brave men who gave their lives for the Republic, as well as the more recent wars. The service was followed by a parade to Union cemetery in which the various organizations of the town participated. Among the organizations included the members of the American Legion, Woman's Relief Corps, Woman's Auxiliary, the American Legion, Boy and Girl Scouts and children of the town.

STORES ON MAIN STREET ROBBED; TWO HELD; ONE SOUGHT

Two stores on the upper end of Main street were entered and small amounts of merchandise taken from each by three men, two of whom were later captured by the police. The stores entered were the drug store of P. A. Ryan and the adjoining grocery store conducted by A. P. Ghieri. Clavel Sheppard, 20, an elevator operator, and Jack Dawson, 21, a tailor, were arrested by officers Douglas and Thorp who found them seated in a car in which some of the loot was found. In the car also was found a bottle of whiskey and a hose which the men had used to drain the gas tanks of other cars to keep their own supplied. A third man said by the two arrested to be Charles Stafford, a negro, and owner of the car is still being sought by the police. The two men were arrested by the local officers on a charge of vagrancy. It was not until later in the morning that the burglaries in the two stores were discovered. In Ryan's store a quantity of perfume, some watches and other items of small value were taken. In the grocery store the bulk of the loot consisted of cartons of cigarettes.

ELECTRIC SIGN FOR HIGHWAY IS SELECTED

After several weeks of consideration and investigation the board of trustees of Redwood City last Tuesday evening decided to purchase a highway sign from the Electrical Products Co. of San Francisco. The sign, it is expected, will be in place within the next six weeks at the corner of Broadway and the highway. The decision of the board was the result of a suggestion of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce which has taken a leading part in securing funds for the purchase of the sign. The sign selected from several designs offered will cost $1,190. It will bear the words "Redwood City" in large white letters in the form of an arch. Beneath this arch will be a line in smaller illuminated letters, "Our Climate Is Best by Government Test."

CITY BRIEFS

Thomas J. Newell of Selma was here on Thursday calling on friends. He is a San Mateo county pioneer. He lived in San Gregorio many years ago but left there in 1886 for Selma, where he amassed a fortune in fruit lands. He knows the old timers and whenever he comes to the county he calls on them.

Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Regnart motored to Fresno Sunday morning and remained over the holidays. Louis Behrens of the First National Bank spent Sunday and Monday on a motor trip to Orlando in the Sacramento valley.

Mrs. Norris C. Cummings, who has been ill at her home on King street is improved in her condition and is reported to be well on the road to recovery.

A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Doolittle gathered at their home last Saturday evening for a surprise party and house warming. The following were present: Messrs. and Mesdames Doolittle, Berndsen, Roy Bissell, Jack Hindevaat, Fred Irwin, Mrs. Paul Stevens, Miss Mary Blomquist, Miss Agnes Hindevaat, Messrs. G. J. Lutz, Wesley Lecker, Fred Taylor and Earl Eklund.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Brand and daughter, Martha, spent the week end visiting the former's mother in Glen Ellen.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Jones and son, Grant Jr., spent the holidays at their pretty cabin on Pescadero creek.

C. G. Lambert and Carl Muller will leave today for New York enroute to Europe, where they will visit their former homes, England and Germany. They will return in September.

Rev. C. A. Parker left this week for a tour of the eastern part of the country. While in the east Rev. Mr. Parker will be present at the reunion at Brown's University from which he graduated.

Frank King, the well-known Reno attorney and a former San Mateo county man, is here with his family on a short vacation. He was born and raised in the shadow of Kings Mountain, where his parents resided for years and after whom the mountain was named. The Skyline boulevard now passes the big elevation, making the name King famous through the land.

Fred Nobis, superintendent of the Empire mine at Grass valley, spent the holidays with his parents at their home on Avenida avenue. Mr. Nobis is also regional trustee of Stanford University.

John O'Neill, father of Dr. A. E. O'Neill of this city, was here yesterday on a visit to his son. Mr. O'Neill is a prominent resident of Eureka and came to San Francisco as a delegate to the Knights of Columbus convention. He was highly delighted with Redwood City. He sees great possibilities for the county seat.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Helmer and son Duncan of Santa Cruz spent the week end with relatives here.

WOODSIDE

This whole community was shocked by the death last Saturday of Dorothy Lewis, niece of Fire Chief Anton Davis. At the time of the accident it was believed that she was not seriously injured so that the news of her death came altogether unexpected. Her school mates have fondly remembered her during the week by keeping her desk flag-draped and flower-strewn.

Rev. Benjamin St. John spent several days of the week at Belmont, attending the celebration of the 60th anniversary of the establishment of the Congregational church there. This is one of the oldest Protestant churches in California, and Mr. St. John served as its pastor for eleven years prior to his coming to Woodside.

The choir of Trinity Episcopal church of San Francisco, forty-five members in all will hold their annual picnic at Mrs. Gish's place this week end.

Max de Haas and family, former residents of Woodside, now living in Oakland, visited their old friends here on Sunday last.

Mrs. Bernasque also returned to Woodside for several days' visit this week.

P. H. Mighall is building a new cottage on a fine lot that he owns across from his residence on the highway. It has already been leased although construction has just begun.

James Mackenzie and family have moved from the house they have occupied or the past year to a cottage belonging to Dr. Ross on his "Little Forest" place.

Mortimer Fleishacker and family have arrived for the summer a month later than their usual schedule.

SECOND PORTION OF GERMANIA HALL WRECKED

Wrecking operations were begun on the second section of the old Germania hall. The original portion of the old building, the part still belonging to Miss Bertha Kuck and Mrs. John Welsh, the daughters of Martin Kuck, the builder, is now completely removed and building operations on a new building, including later additions to the well-known structure, were sold some time ago by the Kuck heirs. The owner of this section, it is said, intends to build on his part of the property as soon as the old building can be removed.

ALL KIWANIS NIGHT TO BE TUESDAY

Because of conflicting events and the fact that no suitable hall can be secured for Monday evening the local Kiwanis Club will hold their annual Kiwanis night on Tuesday, at which time an elaborate program will be enjoyed. To meet with the requirement of the club, that it meet coincidentally with the convening of the international convention, which will be held this year at Montreal, the members of the club will meet for a short session Monday afternoon.

A committee consisting of Phil Brand, chairman, Asa Hill, Harry Groom, Charles Dummelt, Mark Ryan, Dr. N. C. Cummings, Joe Old Powers, O. M. Carrington, Joe Gibson and Roy W. Cloud have been busy for some weeks making preparations for the event and an interesting evening is expected.

LOCAL YOUTH RECEIVES WELL MERITED HONOR

Frank Miramontes, son of Mrs. Nellie Miramontes of this city, and a graduate of the University of Santa Clara with the class of 1926, was signally honored with two of his classmates by being offered the special training of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co.

Every year this company selects a few young men who have distinguished themselves in engineering at college and gives them special training to fit them for executive positions in the company. The local youth and his two classmates will begin their training at the Westinghouse shops in Pennsylvania in September.

DEATH OF GIRL 12 RESULT OF BURNS

Burns received when the alcohol in an alcohol stove which she was filling caught fire and ignited her clothing ended fatally Saturday morning for twelve-year-old Dorothy Lewis of Woodside. The girl tried to extinguish the spreading flames with a pail of water, but the alcohol was merely spread by the water and she then ran screaming through the house.

Mrs. A. J. Davis, aunt of the girl with whom she lived, finally succeeded in quenching the flames with a rug, but not before the child had been burned severely. She was taken to the Community Hospital, where she passed away Sunday.

Besides her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Davis of Woodside, the girl is survived by her mother, Mrs. Rose Groener of San Francisco. Funeral services were held from the latter city Tuesday from the Corpus Christi Catholic church. Interment was in the Holy Cross cemetery.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS FOR HILLSBOROUGH CONCERTS TO RECEIVE CONSIDERATION

Traffic regulations and transportation facilities for the series of Sunday afternoon open air concerts to be given in the Hillsborough School Grounds beginning June 13th will receive the special consideration this week of the authorities of Hillsborough, Burlingame and San Mateo.

A preliminary study of the situation has convinced those in charge that a simple but effective system can be developed for the handling of motor traffic to and from the concert grounds. The American Legion has volunteered its services to assist in the policing of the streets and roads leading to and from the school.

Extra service on both the Market Street Railway line, the S. P. and the Peninsula Rapid Transit Company is contemplated. One of the problems however that is receiving the consideration of both public officials and officers of the Philharmonic Society is that of handling pedestrian traffic from the trains and street car lines to the school grounds. A special motor bus service for this purpose is being advocated but as yet no definite decision has been reached. With the first concert now less than two weeks off everything is being done to complete the necessary preliminary arrangements with the utmost dispatch. Nikolai Sokoloff, director of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra who will conduct the San Francisco Symphony in this first concert will hold his first rehearsal this week. He has expressed his utmost satisfaction over the arrangements effected for the concerts here and declares it his belief that this season will again focus on this section of California the artistic interest of the nation.

NEW PASTOR COMES TO ST. PETERS CHURCH

Rev. Walter P. Doty of San Francisco, who has been appointed to succeed Rev. A. E. Clay as pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal church in this city, and who has conducted the services in the local church for the past few Sundays, moved to this city this week, and with Mrs. Doty is now making his home at 175 Hudson street.

Rev. Doty has for some time been assistant rector of St. Luke's church in San Francisco. He is a young man of a forceful and pleasing personality, and comes to this church highly recommended by his associates in his last charge.

All of the affairs of the church are now being held in the beautiful parish building completed during the pastorate of Rev. Clay on Clinton street. The new pastor has found an active and enthusiastic parish and many events are on the tapis for the near future in the parish building.

Rev. Clay, who recently ended a pastorate which was short but great in accomplishment, is now rector of the Episcopal church in Pacific Grove.

THIS kind of printing that pays dividends is the kind you should have. Pale, muddy, poorly arranged printed matter is worse than none. HEADWEAR NOTABLE FOR STYLE; TAILORED SUITS NOW POPULAR

EVERY once in a while a tidal wave in fashion seems to roll, with the dawn, across the country and all the women, from Maine to California, wake up wanting the same thing on the same day. Once it was fanciful shoes, again it was the straightline dress, last season the call was for the little felt hat, as like other felt hats as peas in a pod, and now it is for headwear of exactly the opposite type. Yes, we have been asleep at the switch in millinery matters, overlooking the importance of the most flattering of all our belongings. But with spring came an awakening and now women are firmly and unanimously calling for variety and beauty in their hats and more than all, popular. These are demanded in manish and in dressier styles. Hair line stripes and checks are usually plain and severely tailored and there are many smart combinations of checks with plain materials. Cape suits and ensembles answer the call for dressier tailors. Innovations in the tailored mode appear in the introduction of livelier colors and new patterns in weaving. Tweeds are varied by fancy and tapestry patterns and by the introduction of new colors, as rose tan, lavender or green, and homespun may be had in high colors. Twill and charmer are displayed in light green, white, pale beige, warm tan, and for midsummer we will have soft tones of blue, rose or mauve as well. By the introduction of these new, light colors, and by clever designing and finishing touches the tailored modes reflect the predominance of feminine styles.

Showing Particular Style Value.

But stylists are going a step further for midsummer; they are interpreting the tailleur in satin and in taffeta silk. The simple model pictured here is made of white satin with vestee and pings in pale green. A green and white hat, white footwear, white gloves and green-flowered parasols complete a costume that looks as cool as a glacier.

Belting Ribbon Hats
 The popular gilette hat, with its high-dented crown, is duplicated in belting ribbon in the bright colors that are in vogue in spring fashions.

A New Ensemble
 Paris has developed a new ensemble consisting of neckpieces and muffs. These usually are not developed entirely in furs. One consists of a black satin cravat, from which depends a jabot of beaver. It is accompanied by a pillow muf of satin, with flaring beaver bands at the ends. Feather collars are accompanied by plumed muffs.

Handkerchief Squares
 Handkerchief squares, large enough to wrap about the neck, are worn to add a contrast to the pastel-hued frock which is at its height of popularity.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

The Yearly Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is our highest building.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in one year could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building. And there would be enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts to Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have lots of work to do and I am not very strong, but I was getting worse all the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to lose my appetite completely at certain times, but I feel very well since I began taking this medicine. I think so much of it that I would go before a notary and swear to its merits. You could step into my home any time and you will find a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Frank M. Casey, 220 South 11th Ave., Mount Vernon, N. Y.

on Noah and the Ark

In 1872 George Smith of the British Oriental society at Philadelphia that the inscriptions relate the story of Noah and the ark. According to this account, Noah cut trees down in the jungle and made an ark consisting of six decks which were divided into seven compartments. Two-thirds of the ark was under water when it was afloat. Part of the translation reads: "For our food I slaughtered oxen and killed sheep—day by day. With beer and brandy, oil and wine, I filled large jars, as with water of a river."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Disraeli's Candor

Lord Beaconsfield had taken a friend into the house of commons. "You know all these men well, I presume," said the man turning to Disraeli. "Do you mean the front bench?" asked the former prime minister. "No, I know more or less about them; I mean the men immediately behind." "Disraeli" put up his eyeglasses, glanced along the second row, and said, "Do you see that very bald man?" As soon as his guest identified the man, Beaconsfield added, "He is the greatest rascal living; I knighted him."

Beginning Early in Life

One of the good "daddies" who had gone to Florida to get rich told his two little girls, age seven and nine, he would give them 25 cents for every letter they composed and mailed to him.

Mary Ann, age seven, wrote one like this: "Dear Daddy—I want you to come home. I don't know when you are coming, but when you do come, come a day sooner."

It brought daddy and double pay.—Indianapolis News.

ires the Thomas Process

Our many years of experience taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we use the best of the equipment of a $500,000 in the establishment of an organization to do the dirty work demanded by our stomer.

With the "F. THOMAS PROCESS" we do not only remove every trace of dirt but we return garments without that usual agreeable smell of gasoline every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is redistilled and very highly refined.

Raw gasoline — the kind that a buy to your automobile — is full of heavy oils and unfit for cleaning fabrics. It is little better than ordinary distillate and gives a sickening gasoline smell your clothes.

Steam electric generating or standby power plants are interconnected with hydro-electric plants insuring continuity of service to homes, factories and farms.

Thru foresight and business initiative, California Power Companies have developed for you an electrical system so efficient, and complete—with energy served at a cost so low that 96.5% of California homes are now using electricity.

Since 1913 the average per capita cost of living increased 6%, while the average cost of electricity decreased 8%.

V. P. Richards, one of the old-time residents of Butte county, celebrated the eighty-fifth anniversary of his birthday recently, in the home he has lived in for nearly all the time since he came to Butte county in 1869.

It is interesting to note that figures of the United States Department of Agriculture for 1925 show California with less than 2 per cent of the crop acreage of the entire country, produced crops having a total farm value of nearly $470,000,000.

A new use for gopher tails, in which gophers have no interest, has been found in the Imperial valley. The tails are becoming legal tender in many valley towns, where a bounty of 10 cents a tail is paid by the county horticultural commission.

California will send the largest delegation to the Eucharistic Congress to be held in Chicago from June 20 to June 24, of any Pacific Coast state, according to Frank A. McCarthy, general chairman of the Young Men's Institute pilgrimage.

The San Diego Realty Board, contending for the 1927 state convention of the California Real Estate association, has announced its withdrawal in favor of the Santa Monica Bay District Realty Board. The convention will be held in October of next year.

The Native Sons of the Golden West at their recent forty-ninth Grand Parlor in Santa Rosa adopted two resolutions calling upon all members of the order to actively sponsor the protection and wise use of the timber and other valuable natural resources of the state, and to join each year in the national observance of American Forest week.

Southern California as a whole and Los Angeles in particular will be brought prominently before the real estate world at the nineteenth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at Tulsa, Oklahoma, opening June 7, when of the eighteen California men scheduled to deliver addresses, papers and reports, twelve will be from the south-land.

Wasco was host to all Kern county celebrating a civic dream come true. That dream became a fact April 22, when the Wasco water system, first project of the Wasco public utility district, filled its mains to give the city a domestic water supply and adequate protection against fire. The system, which cost $75,000 is now supplying 350 consumers 400,000 gallons daily.

Fully 25 per cent of California high school students are devotees to Lady Nicotine at the present time, or five times as many as used tobacco twenty years ago. It was estimated by Dr. Herbert R. Stolz, state supervisor of physical education, who declared that cigarette smoking by modern high school girls has helped to bring about the surprising increase of the last two decades.

The completion of the 3,000,000-gallon reinforced concrete water reservoir, situated on the hills west of Newport Beach, recently marked another step in the development of municipal improvements in Orange county. The huge tank, one of the largest city water reservoirs in southern California, is a part of the $350,000 municipal water system now under construction in the city of Newport Beach.

Offer of a deed of gift of Pixler's grove, pioneer picnic grounds of twenty acres near Lodi, has been made to the city of Lodi, provided Lodi Post, American Legion, will guarantee to improve it for a long term of years. W. G. Micke, prominent fruit grower, who makes the offer, asks that the post bore a well, install electric lighting, playgrounds and other equipment. The post has named a committee to investigate.

Investigators and inspectors of all state departments hereafter will be permitted to hold such offices only after qualifying through civil service examinations, and all employees now holding positions of this nature under temporary authorization must appear for examination. David J. Reese, state civil service commissioner, announced. Detectives and special officers heretofore have been exempt from civil service regulations.

Before a crowd of 3,500 people, including editors from all over the state, comprising the membership of the California Press association, the Klamath River bridge, last link in the Redwood highway, famous coast travel artery, was dedicated a short time ago. Governor Friend W. Richardson gave the dedication address, dedicating the bridge to the memory of the late Assemblyman G. H. Douglas, who died suddenly in Sacramento March 27, 1923, shortly after addressing a legislative committee on the appropriation for the bridge over the Klamath river.

STOCK CHEATER TO BE BLOCKED

The citizens of El Monte, Los Angeles county, have devised a practical program to protect themselves from stock swindlers. It was announced a short time ago, by State Corporation Commissioner Edwin M. Daugherty, of Sacramento, who recommended the plan to the rest of California municipalities. The unique co-operative plan at El Monte, Daugherty said, simply involves calling up the chamber of commerce and reporting each time a stock salesman appears with securities for sale. Then the vigilance committee gets busy, asks the salesman or broker to explain his proposition and orders him to get out of town if his proposal is risky or without merit.

United States Attorney George J. Hatfield, at the last session of the federal grand jury, secured the indictment of another receiver of stolen property. One of the activities of the leeches who operate in the vicinity of military reservations is a traffic in purloined government property. These persons, including certain proprietors of clothing stores and other places of business catering to men in the service near army posts, have been buying valuable articles of clothing, blankets, etc., from soldiers for trifling sums. The most nefarious of the practice of these shysters is the inducement to steal offered by this trade. The present case will be brought to trial at the earliest possible time with a view to effecting a summary abatement of this illegal traffic with its attendant bad influence upon susceptible soldiers.

That there shall be no further drowning fatalities off Death Rock at Wright's beach, where three young San Francisco boys were recently swept to their deaths is now assured. Not only will warning signs be placed about the spot, but the Petaluma Elks had a meeting and decided to cause the use of dynamite that shall shatter the approach to the rock that it will be impossible for people to get up onto it. Some years ago Ray Corliss, wealthy hatchery man of Petaluma and a member of the Petaluma Elks, lost his life while fishing off the rock and as a memorial to him and to the others who have since met a similar fate the Elks have taken the matter of shattering the rock in hand.

Hartwell and George B. McDougall, state officials, visited the historic ground at Fort Ross, in Sonoma county, recently, where the Russians landed in 1812, built a church and a fort, ran up a stockade and planted an apple orchard. This property is now owned by the State of California and the state has restored the old landmark. McDougall, who is state architect, outlined further restoration work for which an appropriation of $2,500 was granted by the last legislature. On July 4 the second service in a hundred years will be held in the church. The Rev. Father D. Sakovich, of Trinity Russian cathedral, San Francisco will officiate.

Setting forth that "such illegal businesses are now being conducted in our city in great numbers, and are a menace to the property owners and to public welfare, and tend to lower the moral standard of our community," a petition signed by 100 citizens of Tracy, San Joaquin county, has been presented to the Tracy city council, asking that the board "close or abate all houses of prostitution, all blind pigs selling liquor and all gambling places within the city."

Before an audience of 4,000 persons mostly hikers, carpeting the slopes of the natural amphitheater near West Point on Mount Tamalpais, May 23, Rip Van Winkle, came to life and his shaggy beard danced in the breeze that swept in from the sea. "Rip Van Winkle" was the thirteenth play staged on the grassy slope of the mountain by the Mountain Players and was acclaimed the best by many who have made the pilgrimage to the mountain play for many years.

Pointing out that southern California, with 2,000,000 population has had but one congressman on the job, with the Boulder dam legislation before the national body, Robert M. Clarke, candidate for the United States Senate, issued a statement recently. He discussed the postponement of the subject and declared that this action at Washington is "discouraging though not disheartening."

Owing to the efficiency of its workmen, its superpower and available raw materials the Pacific coast is soon destined to become a great manufacturing area, urged B. M. Rastall of the Californians, Inc. In a speech before the San Joaquin valley supervisors and the San Joaquin valley secretaries in session at Bakersfield.

THE POWER

SYNOPSIS—Idly fishing Hermanos creek, near California, Caleb Warner, civil engineer and a New Englander, is witness of the end of a coyote pulled down by two wolfhounds, urged on by a girl rider. Admiring the hounds, he introduces himself, and learns her name is Clinton. With westward hospitality she takes him to the ranch to meet her father. At the Clinton home Warner learns his new friend's name is Betty. Clinton looks over the water company's source of supply, the Crystal springs, in Hermanos valley. Prospecting in Hermanos valley, Caleb meets a man, Evans, who boasts of his ability, through "divining rods," to locate water without boring. Caleb comes upon a picnic party, the festivities being in honor of Betty Clinton's birthday, and is welcomed. Betty tells him Hermanos valley, containing the burial places of three generations of Clintons, is sacred for all time. Caleb, with Colonel Wilson and Betty, are threatened by a bull. Warner bravely protects the girls, and is himself rescued by Padilla, Clinton's man.

He believed that the lower end of the plain, the portion that the diver termed the Sink, was composed of gravel, retained in clay but without the clay capping. In it was held the sunken waters of the five creeks, the same water that furnished the wells of the territory north of the creek. And this theory should hold the same level, if his theory was correct. It should lie some forty feet below the surface in normal times—less during the storm-water season. It would be absolutely pure—filtered through the gravel. If this was true—and he believed it was—he had found a water mine, a mine with an inexhaustible, ever renewed commodity, that was as commercial as any mineral that, conveyed to Golden, meant the assured progress of that city.

He knew that the city of Berlin, at enormous expense, had manufactured beds of gravel for the filtering of its civic supply, but here at hand he had the filter built by nature, a cistern waiting to be tapped. And this had laid unsuspected under the very noses of Cox and his engineers, and the water experts of Oakville.

He had to proceed cautiously. It was imperative to cloak his intentions and his methods. If he made the discovery, it was his, to engineer and to sell. He could not bore in the Sink to prove out his hope that clay bottomed all the gravel and held the water. He meant to use the diver for that, keeping him in ignorance of what the experiments might mean.

He stocked himself with cigars, and after supper crossed the bridge and walked along the creek and up the road to the pit. There was a wisp of smoke coming from the rusty pipe and a light burning back of the solitary window.

A smell of crude cooking, blent of cheap coffee and half-cured bacon, tintured with the acrid odor of beans burned in a pot, came out through the door, which opened part way to Caleb's knock, disclosing the lean figure of the Welshman silhouetted against the lamplight.

"Who's there?" asked Evans.

"The fisherman. Don't you remember? You told me about your divining the other day."

The Welshman opened the door wider and peered curiously at Caleb in the broader ray of light. Then he stepped outside.

"Kind of stuffy inside the shack," he said. "A great night. Look at them stars. Ah!"

He took the cigar Caleb proffered and puffed it to a glow, exhaling the smoke with a gratified sigh.

"I brought a few along," said Caleb, "thinking you might like them. I've got plenty."

The other held out his hand for the brown rolls eagerly.

"That's kind of ye. If you don't mind, I'll put 'em in the shack. No pockets handy that won't muck 'em."

He disappeared in the shack and came out again bearing a bundle.

"I'd like to even up with you on them," he said. "How about an exhibition? The power's in me."

The suggestion had come as Caleb would have wished it, spontaneously, from the man himself.

"That will be bully," he answered simply. "I should like very much to see you at work."

A notion there's water most anywhere here. The rod'll prove it. Pick one of the rods," he went on, with the air of a conjurer asking for the choice of "any card in the deck." "They're hazel," he said. "Some say hazel's a magic wood, but the magic ain't in the rod, it's in me. Willer'll do, or peach, but I like hazel. Now, where d'ye say?"

Caleb chose a spot clear of sagebrush. It was almost a circle and he stood on the edge of it, a strange tingling in his veins. The spare figure of the Welshman, looking up at the stars, the rod that Caleb had chosen in his hands, breast high, a fork to each hand, the fingers uppermost; took on something of the dignity of a Druid priest about to perform a mystic rite.

"Can you see plain?" he asked in a whisper. "I'm going to walk to'ard ye. Watch the stem of the rod."

He lowered it to the full length of his arms, stalking slowly, the twig horizontal, right-angled, midway of his thighs. His eyes glittered, upturned to the sky. Suddenly he stopped and Caleb held his breath, gazing intently at the rod.

It seemed to twitch—surely. It vibrated—up and down. Caleb, watching closely, half fearing he might uncover a trick yet wishing to do so if trickery was forward, could detect no flexing of the bony wrists. The fingers were rigid. So tightly did Evans grip the forks that his knuckles showed like ivory knobs against the darker skin.

Then he gave a sigh and the end of the rod tipped violently downwards. Caleb caught the distinct creak of bending, twisting wood in the silence that followed the sigh. The dowser stood braced, rigid, while the twig, its end a frangible pointer, seemed as suddenly imbued with life as Moses' rod. Motion ceased as he stood with the tip of Caleb's rod close to the latter plainly saw the pulses beating violently in Evans' wrists, the veins prominent as cords. And the stem of the rod pointed steadily downward at an angle of more than 45 degrees from the horizontally held forks.

"Dig there, bore there—forty feet," murmured the dowser, speaking like a medium in trance, "and you'll find water."

He relaxed and the rod fell to the ground. He stooped and picked it up. He rubbed his eyes as one awakening from a spell.

"Them's all fresh rods in the bundle," he said. "I cut 'em the day before yesterday. Look where she forks."

Well, Caleb has found his water all right. Now what will he do with it?

Methods of Ancient Builders Stand Test

The builder of six thousand years ago, like the builder of today, had his problems, and his expedients anticipated the methods of modern construction. "Drick for stone and slime for mortar," describes the method of the builders of the tower of Babel. That was the prevailing fashion even earlier.

The excavators at Ur have found a small amount of stonework also, but stone was scarce in that country. It had to be imported and was rarely used in building construction. They have also found columns and arches, inventions that associate themselves with the history of architecture throughout the ages.

The problem of decoration was not solved with materials and methods familiar enough to the building trade today. In that remote era we see the

Patriotic Pride

The term "God's country" is often applied to a nation or country by its sons and daughters. A recently published bulletin on Australia calls attention to the fact that among the white inhabitants poverty is practically unknown, the aged, infirm and children are adequately provided for, the labor situation is satisfactory and the territory itself offers unlimited and the exercise of man's ingenuity. All these things would make it seem a favored spot.

We'll try her ag'en. The power's strong. Then you can tackle it."

"Me?" Caleb's surprise was unforced.

"Ye, you might have the power. You're sympathetic, anyway. Let's walk out a bit farther. Away from the creek. It don't make no difference where. There's a water table under us. This end of the valley ain't so much a sink as a cistern."

Caleb's heart pounded at this confirmation of his belief. He was in a curious state of excitement. But he said nothing. They tried again a quarter of a mile away. The same phenomenon occurred with so much greater emphasis that the forks crossed each other. No juggling with hands apart could have managed this. "Try it," said Evans, wiping sweat from his forehead. "Twice is enough for me. That last was a twister. Did ye say you had another cigar with ye? I left all mine in the shack. Now then—choose yore twig. We know there's water here. If you've got the power it'll show. Don't be in a hurry. Don't think of nothin'. Make yore mind a blank. Hold it level—fingers up—so!"

He arranged Caleb's hands to his liking with his own bony, clammy fingers and stepped back. Caleb stood alone, fixing his eyes on the glow of the dowser's cigar in a species of hypnosis, waiting, trying to eliminate all thought.

In this he succeeded. Motionless, he waited, gazing at the spark of fire and the dark pillar of the Welshman's body. The spark seemed to grow larger—larger—and then he felt, simultaneously—a distinct tremor run up his forearms, a sinking sensation in the pit of his stomach, a quiver of diaphragmatic ganglia.

The rod twitched. He gripped the forks hard—harder. They began to vibrate. The tremor increased in his wrists. The forks strangely seemed to be a part of him, sensitive, alive. Then there seemed to be a tug at the end of the stem, like the swift strike of a fish at the lure. And the straight stem bent as he might have bent his finger, in a pointer, straight to water.

He had no doubt of it now. The thing had happened to himself. It was marvelous as it was mysterious, this sense of power. And he thrilled to it. It was an indorsement of his title as Water-Bearer, surely an augury of success. It filled him, not with pride, but with reverence for his gift.

"Glory be!" cried the dowser. "You've got it, pardner. You've got the power. By gosh, you'll be takin' my job from me," he added with a short laugh that ended in a cough.

"I'll see that you are no loser by it," said Caleb, smiling back. And he meant the promise. For now he was certain of the fulfillment of his idea, much as yet remained to be proven and accomplished. The hunch was born, for he had in his hand the key that would unlock for him the secret of the Sink. With the power—was it his birthright, a gift from Aquarius, glittering on the hilly horizon?—he could, working at night, cover the whole area of the lower valley and exploit, without boring, the extent of the water table. Under the gravel lay, he was convinced—none the less by the occult manner of its determination—water for the thousands who would make Golden mighty among cities—water for incoming families, for factories, for fields and gardens, for civic use! A mammoth cistern ready to be tapped.

Before he left him, to walk back to the hotel, exultant, Caleb got some worthwhile information from Evans. He had the name of the man who owned most—if not all—of the Sink.

The land was valueless for farming. It could be acquired cheaply. That was an important factor. Even at the low price, the big acreage would mean an amount far beyond Caleb's compass. That end of it, with the other big expenses, he must leave to Cox for financing. But the secret was his.

He found a small parcel awaiting him at the hotel that had come by the evening mail. On it was the return address of Golden's best jeweler. He opened it and took from a bed of cotton wool a jade pendant. On it was engraved in intaglio the zodiac sign of Pisces. Two fishes joined by a ribbon. He had ordered it on his return from El Nido after the picnic. He intended it as a belated birthday gift to Betty Clinton.

Well, Caleb has found his water all right. Now what will he do with it?
